Golden Pagoda Vipassana Meditation Centre
Blackheath, New South Wales, Australia

Golden Pagoda Vipassana Meditation Centre Blackheath, New South Wales, Australia
Architect: Balwant Saini (On-site supervision and construction by Dave Ferry and David Baggs)

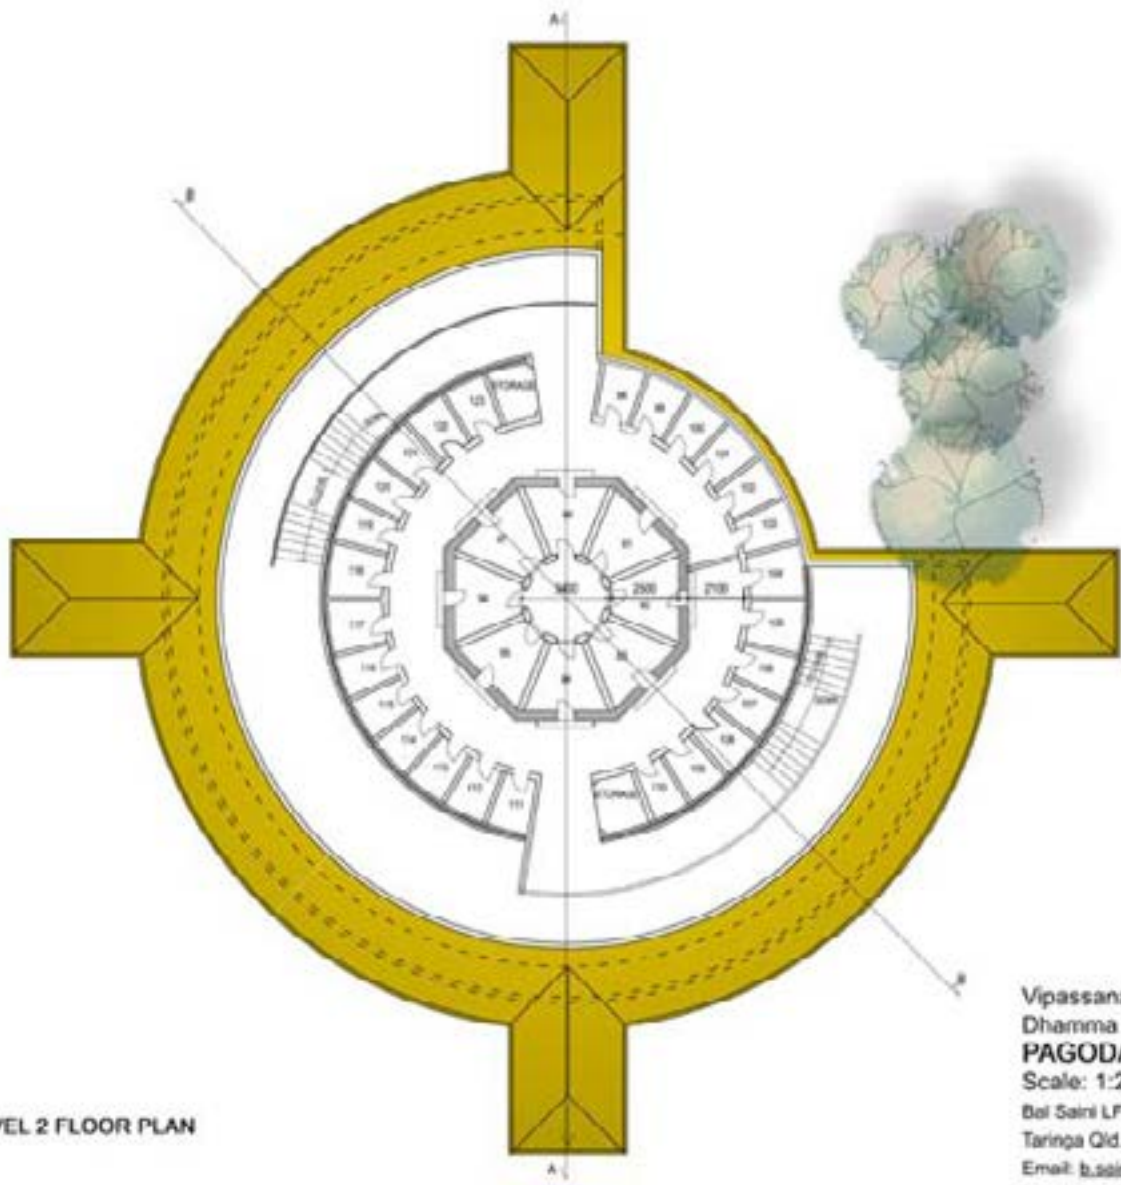

These extensions were earlier proposed to enlarge the existing smaller structure comprising 2 rings of 36 cells. The golden dome is similar in appearance to Shwedagon Pagoda of Yangon in Myanmar. The completed structure has now become a focal point of the centre, both visually and for meditation.
